General School Updates

Midterm Grade Reports

Believe it or not, as of this Friday (October 4th) we have already reached the midway point of the first quarter of the school year! This means that our teachers will be compiling midterm grade reports for all students. Watch for a paper report to come home in grades K-2 and a digital report to come via email for students in grades 3-8 by early next week. This is also a great time to contact your child's teacher to discuss their academic progress and any questions or concerns you may have about their work at school. Please don't hesitate to reach out to us after viewing your child's report!

School Picture Day - Thursday, October 10 (Friday, October 11 for Little Lambs)

Next week is our annual school picture day! Flyers from Lifetouch studios were sent home last week. Please return all picture orders along with payment on or prior to picture day. Information was included with the flyer on how, alternatively, families can also choose to order pictures online via credit or debit card rather than needing to return the physical flyer with a check or cash payment. Let your child's teacher know if you need flyer for ordering pictures.

No School for Teachers' Conferences (October 17-18)

Due to our teachers going to a teachers conference on Thursday and Friday October 17-18, there will be no school on those days. We hope your family is able to enjoy some more family time together on those extra days off!

Little Lambs Preschool Updates

The results from our apple graphing are in. The Golden Delicious apple is the winner! Messy Monday is October 7th 6:15-7:00. If you would like to attend please email me the number of children attending.

Blessings on your weekend!

K-2 Classroom Updates

The kindergarten through second grade classes are hard workers! We did our best thinking and stretched our brains during this week's MAP test. Our brains are also stretching and growing as we work with new math and reading concepts this week. We are growing and learning in so many different ways. It is amazing how God has made our brains so that we can do all this learning!

A favorite this week for kindergarten was bringing in something to show and tell in writing, which meant we got to draw (show) and write (tell) about a special object from home. In first grade, we are working really hard on learning strategies to help us as we add (make doubles, counting on, using 10 to add). In second grade, we are continuing to show we are great leaders and helpers to our teachers and classmates and also are enjoying the time when we get to read our favorite books!

3-5 Classroom Updates

October is off to an exciting start. It's been a busy week. We have had our first round of testing. In order to have a device for everyone, we move to the computer lab for tests. The change of scenery is nice, but we still have to stay focused for a really long time. On Wednesday some of us participated in National Walk-to-School Day. That's a fun way to start the morning with friends! We got our new school T-shirts this week. Some of us will be wearing them at the MVL Cross Country Meet.

6-8 Classroom Updates

We have been enjoying our new novel for reading class titled, Counting by 7's. This realistic fiction novel is about a girl named Willow who is extremely smart for her age. After losing her parents to a car accident, she struggles to find a home and people to consider her family. We look forward to hearing more about her life story as the plot unfolds in the coming days and weeks!

This week we finished up our first round of MAP testing. All 6-8th graders were tested on their math, reading, and language skills. This first round of tests gives the teachers a basic idea of where each student stands academically as the school year begins. We will test two more times later in the year to gauge our learning and progress. We look forward to seeing how much we grow in each of these three core areas over the full school year!
